Sadly this is a bit of a nose dive in terms of quality compared with the previous Gundemonium games. It's got all kinds of weird mechanics that simply don't work well in a bullet hell game and I feel alienated. You certainly cannot play this like any other shooter as the game constantly encourages you to get close to larger enemies and die to perform the most damage and most of the time you'll hit a bullet on your way there and waste that life. The bullets are also a lot faster, the character speeds more varied making it very difficult to pick up. Even the best players die constantly, making an attempt to be good at this game very undesirable and unrewarding.. Epic, simply epic.. NASHEED INTENSIFIES]. one of the most difficult shooters I've played so far. Bullet hell' doesn't begin to describe it, but what style and action! Pretty and intense. Confirms my belief that everyone should play with dolls.. If you like Touhou, you may just like this, too.. Excellent doujin vertical shmup with impressive sprites,flawless controls and a very nice original mechanic:instead of a single character you control a party of marionettes,each having distinct attacks and abilities. Oh and despite having four different difficulty settings the game is fairly challenging even on the lowest one.. Crazy Japanese bullet hell fun. I wish I was better at this genre so I could truly appreciate the advanced features and the need to ration your kamikaze attacks. Unless you're a bullet-hell/danmaku ninja, you have to save your doll roster for specific bosses and reaching the end of the game. Several unlockable units and bosses for the truly skilled. It's not Bug Princess (Mushihimesama, they made a port of that for iOS, LOLOLOLOL), but it's still hella tough.. I've always argued that real fun can exist in a game that's very difficult. But the game has to provide you something more than, "Oh well, you died. Try again." in order for you to come back. The gameplay doesn't have to break the mold but it has to offer this "X factor" that makes even dying, fun and a natural part of the game. In this game when you die, and you will die a lot, the transition of throwing you back into the game is 100% smooth. The graphics are above-average, the sound is pretty standard but the overall presentation is pretty ho-hum and difficulty is brutal. I'm not wasting anymore time trying to get better at this. I love shoot em ups but there are others that are worth more of my time.. It's definitely very very difficult, but they kinda forgot to make it fun, OOPS!
